

Since New Jersey enacted its Do Not Call list, life has been a pleasure. I do not receive the constant daily phone calls from my phone, cable, credit card and bank companies pushing every (expensive) service they offer that I do not need or use. I am no longer bombarded at dinner time by sales calls for products and services I have no interest in. I resent the fact that I pay for my phone service yet companies use it for their advertising purposes. I pay for my phone service to hear from friends and family or for an emergency, not to hear sales people who ramble on or will not take no for answer. Even my answering machine gets lengthy messages from "tele-marketers". Nothing is more bothersome than coming home from work, playing back my messages, and having them all be sales "pitches". I would not invite these people into my home if they were standing outside my door, why should they invade my home by phone? New Jersey has protected my rights with a "Do Not Call" list. Please don't weaken our "Do Not Call".
